Have you ever wondered if the children in your group really listen to you? Are they hearing you at all? When we have positive interactions with children, we are increasing their cognitive skills, building their trust and creating relationships with them. We are also creating a positive environment for their growth and development. Positive teacher-child interactions can last a lifetime. Your interactions matter!

After attending this event, participants will be able to list reasons why interactions are important, rephrase negative statements into positive statements, and identify various ways to positively respond to children.

Course requirements to earn the CEU certificate include attending the two hour session and actively participating in group activities and role plays.
